TWO AMAZING ENTREPRENEURIAL WOMEN IN COLORADO HELP THOSE WITH DISABILITIES

Reggio Imports and Splash Funwear donate 10% of sales to Cerebral Palsy of Colorado

DENVER, CO – Cerebral Palsy of Colorado announced today that two very special women are helping raise funds at the 6th Annual Mother's Tea for statewide programs. The fundraiser May 12, 2007 at Westin Tabor Center has a fun shopping experience planned. This year will feature a fashion show displaying two Colorado based companies started by local women and run out of Metro Denver homes; one in Littleton the other in Centennial. "We have two separate ladies with one goal in mind, helping people with disabilities. We are so thankful for their involvement with our Mother's Tea," states Judy Ham, President and CEO of Cerebral Palsy of Colorado.

Reggio Imports owner Susan Wright wanted to bring a European inspired Boutique to Colorado. Her online storefront brings a one of a kind fashion experience, designed to showcase great finds that are high quality and fabulously priced. "Fun clothes designed for the Diva in all of us", she smiles. Wright goes on to say, that the Reggio Collection encompasses styles from classic to casual and there is always something for that special night out. Reggio Imports offers a home party plan where women can earn free clothes by showcasing the Reggio Collection. Those looking for something a little different are invited to "Try on a New Career and become a Reggio Fashion Consultant". Details can be found on www.reggioimports.com

Centennial is home of Splash Funwear; a line of fun, bright and absorbent terry cloth swimsuit cover-ups designed by owner, Tracy Bullock, mother of four children 13, 11, 8 and 6. The fashions were inspired by the old-fashioned towel cover-ups many a grandma made to keep kids warm after swimming. However, there is nothing old fashioned about these shorts, pants, skirts and tops. Bullock states, "I started this business in May 06. Being a mom of kids on swim team, I realized that this was a product that was not only stylish but also very practical. The comment I hear most from mom's that have purchased my product is "my daughter wears it everyday and I can't get her to take it off so I can wash it"! These clothes are so comfortable for the kids they can wear them anytime not just at the pool!" Bright colors and cool patterns make these clothes fly off the racks at local swim shops. Splash Funwear also provides special orders for local swim teams and other large groups at a discounted rate. Bullock even designs her own fabrics for clothes and offers some with matching towels. What really make both women so special is their entrepreneurial spirit and giving hearts. Reggio Imports and Splash Funwear are donating 10% of proceeds from sales at the 6th Annual Mother's Tea to help those with disabilities.

About Mother's Tea:

This Mother's Tea Celebration will be May 12, 2007 at the Westin, Tabor Center. The festivities begin with a Champagne reception, followed by a luncheon with Mistress of Ceremonies, Dr. Stephanie Clements. Mrs. Jacqui Blue, the Mother of well-known comedian Josh Blue will share stories and fond memories of son Josh growing up. A heartwarming fashion show featuring Reggio Imports and Splash Funwear, which includes staff, friends and children of CP of CO, adds a special touch to the day. To recognize the commitment and sacrifice mothers make in the lives of their children, pamper packages are given to six very deserving mothers. The pamper packages provide a break in the hectic life of these extraordinary women by allowing for spa treatments, fine dining, over night accommodations and entertainment at venues throughout downtown Denver.

If you would like to be a sponsor, or would like to purchase a table or individual tickets to this joyous celebration please visit www.cpcoco.org or call 303-691-9339 ext. 32. If you would like to nominate a mother of a special needs child for one of the pamper packages, please do so by visiting www.cpcoco.org and click on the Mother's Tea link under Special Events and complete the online nomination form.
